Next Thursday 3 April Avocados Australia will be running a "Qualicado Workshop", and orchard walk from 9.00am until 3.15pm at the Culross orchard on 702 Green Pigeon Road, Kyogle NSW.

This Qualicado Workshop aims to provide Northern NSW avocado growers with the latest information on how to manage plant health and improve the overall quality of their avocado fruit.

Growers will hear from a range of expert presenters among them a principal extension horticulturalist from the Queensland Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry, and a principal plant pathologist from the Queensland Alliance for Agricultural and Food Innovation. Avocados Australia's CEO John Tyas encourages all avocado growers and packers in the region to attend because "growers will be presented with an update about the national avocado quality program and hear the latest information from leading Australian researchers about plant nutrition, handling and ripening, canopy management, root disease management, and orchard management."

After the presentations growers can take part in an orchard walk while talking one-on-one with researchers.

To register to attend call Avocados Australia's toll free phone number 1300 303 971 or email co@avocado.org.au.
